THE HISTORY OF SIAM IN SPAIN

If one was to visit Spain now, they would see little signs of the fact that this European country, was once rule by Muslims for almost 800 years. Hints remain in the historical architectural structures, which were once mosques. Hints also remain in some aspects of the culture there. But only hints. Where once each corner of the country reverberated with the sound of Azan, handful few remain to remember Allah (SWT).

Where once Islam flourished in all its might and glory, Muslims living there now have to being denied their basic rights to practice Islam. Such have times turned.

But the question remains why?

The Conquest

In the year 711, an oppressed Christian chief, Julian, went to Musa ibn Nusair, the governor of North Africa, with a plea for help against the tyrannical ruler of Spain, Roderick.

Musa responded by sending the young general Tarig bin Zivad with an army of 7000 troops. The name Gibraltar is derived from Jabal At-Tarig which place where the Muslim Both Muslims and non-Muslims made major contributions to this flowering of culture. Stability in Muslim Spain came with the establishment of the Andalusian Umayyad dynasty, which lasted from 756 to 1031.

Indian Muslim Trust to Start Ayodhya Mosque Project

Right-wing groups, including the governing Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), claimed Mughal Emperor Babur built the mosque in the 16th century at the exact site where Hindu god Lord Ram was born.

In November 2019, India's Supreme Court handed over the site to a Hindu trust for the construction of a Ram temple, while the government-controlled Sunni Central Waqf Board was given an alternate site 25km (15 miles) away to build a mosque.

Subsequently, the board announced the formation of the Indo-Islamic Cultural Foundation (IICF) trust to execute the mosque's construction.

According to a statement issued late on Sunday, the IICF trust said work on the mosque will formally begin on January 26, India's Republic Day, which marks the day India's constitution came into effect in 1950.

army landed.

The Muslim army defeated the Visigoth army easily, and Roderick was killed in battle.

After the first victory, the Muslims conquered most of Spain and Portugal with little difficulty, and in fact with little opposition. By 720 Spain was largely under Muslim (or Moorish, as it was called) control.

One reason for the rapid Muslim success was the generous surrender terms that they offered the people, which contrasted with the harsh conditions imposed by the previous Visigoth rulers.

Islamic Spain was a multi-cultural mix of the people of three great monotheistic religions: Muslims, Christians, and Jews.

Although Christians and Jews lived under restrictions, for much of the time the three groups managed to get along together, and to some extent, to benefit from the presence of each other.

It brought a degree of civilisation to Europe that matched the heights of the Roman Empire and the Italian Renaissance.

In 711 Muslim forces invaded and in seven years conquered the Iberian Peninsula.

It became one of the great Muslim civilisations; reaching its summit with the Umayyad caliphate of Cordovain the tenth century.

Periods

Muslim Spain was not a single period, but a succession of different rules.

Life for non-Muslims in Islamic Spain

Jews and Christians did retain some freedom under Muslim rule, providing they obeyed certain rules and in many ways the non-Muslims of Islamic Spain were treated better than conquered peoples might have expected during that period of history.

they were not slaves

•they were not prevented from following their faith •they were not forced to convert or die under

Muslim rule they were not banned from any particular ways of earning a living

•they could work in the civil service of the Islamic rulers

• Jews and Christians were able to contribute to society and culture

Many Christians in Spain assimilated parts of the Muslim culture. Some learned Arabic, some adopted the same clothes as their rulers (some Christian women even started wearing the veil); some took Arabic names. Christians who did this were known as Mozarabs.

Under the reign of Abd al Rahman III (r. 912-961) Spanish Islam reached its greatest power as, every May, campaigns were launched towards the country.

on the part of Christian states, but to divisions among the Muslim rulers. The decline came from both the center and the extremities. Muslim rulers fell into luxurious lifestyles and internal squabbles weakening their empire. Early in the eleventh century, the single Islamic Caliphate had shattered into a score of small kingdoms, ripe for picking-off. The first big Islamic center to fall to Christianity was Toledo in 1085.

The Muslims replied with forces from Africa which under the general Yusuf bin Tashfin defeated the Christians resoundingly in 1086, and by 1102 had recaptured most of Andalusia. The general was able to reunite much of Muslim Spain.

It didn't last. Yusuf died in 1106, and, as one historian puts it, the "rulers of Muslim states began cutting each other's throats again".

Internal rebellions in 1144 and 1145 further shattered Islamic unity, and despite intermittent military successes, Islam's domination of Spain was ended for good. The Muslims finally lost all power in Spain in 1492. By 1502 the Christian rulers issued an order requiring all Muslims to convert to Christianity, and when this didn't work, they imposed brutal restrictions on the remaining Spanish Muslims.

When Spain fell, the Islamic books of knowledge were burned on the streets of Spain for days. The mosques converted to churches and many Muslims fled the
